Dear Member of Congress,

The undersigned organizations represent a coalition of education organizations dedicated to fulfilling the funding promise for the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). On behalf of over 6.8 million students with disabilities, their teachers, specialized instructional support personnel, parents, school boards and administrators, we write to urge you to provide a significant increase in funding for IDEA as part of a fair and proportional allocation for the final FY21 LHHS-Education appropriations bill. Specifically, we ask that you provide no less than $14 billion for IDEA Part B, $684 million for Part B Section 619, $975 million for IDEA Part C, $254 million for IDEA Part D and $70 million for the National Center for Special Education Statistics, putting IDEA on a glidepath to full funding.

These investments are as critical as ever, as school districts work to ensure appropriate and equitable implementation of IDEA during the COVID pandemic. We write today with an ask specific to IDEA funding in the annual appropriations process, an ask that is in addition to—not in place of—any requests our groups have made related to IDEA support in the context of the COVID pandemic and federal emergency response.

Since its inception in 1975, IDEA has protected students with disabilities by ensuring access to a free appropriate public education. At the time the statute was enacted, Congress promised to pay 40 percent of the National Average per Pupil Expenditure. While special education funding has received significant increases over the past 17 years, federal funding has leveled off recently and has even been cut. The closest the federal government has come to reaching its 40 percent commitment was 18 percent in 2005.

The chronic underfunding of IDEA by the federal government places an additional funding burden on states, local school districts, and taxpayers to pay for needed services, a need that will only be exacerbated as state legislatures respond to the economic downturn by cutting state education funding. This compounds the existing pressure already placed on local budget dollars to cover the federal shortfall, and will further shortchange other school programs that are also beneficial to students with disabilities.

IDEA is currently funded at $12.76 billion. This level funding equates to approximately 13.23 percent of what is historically considered the additional cost of educating students with disabilities, less than half of the 40 percent that was the federal government's original commitment to students with disabilities. We support prioritized and robust investment in IDEA, without negatively impacting funding for other education programs, and urge Congress to ensure a significant increase for IDEA in the final FY21 appropriations statute.

Sincerely,
